Follies of Power-David P. Calleo 2009-04-20 The book discusses the dangers of the "unipolar view" of world politics, one in which the United States is overwhelmingly predominant and should act accordingly. The book notes the damage caused by this view in action - as in the Middle East and Europe. It assesses the real strengths and weaknesses of American power - "soft," military, economic, and moral. It contrasts the federal systems of "Old America" and "New Europe" as models for governing today's increasingly plural system. It notes how friendly balancing from Europe is critical for maintaining America's own constitutional equilibrium.

Capire e farsi capire in inglese-Lonely Planet Publications 2005 Pensato per rispondere alle esigenze del viaggiatore, ovunque si trovi (alla frontiera, sull'autobus, per strada, al ristorante, dal medico o al nightclub), questo frasario è strutturato in argomenti facilmente riconoscibili grazie alla banda colorata che caratterizza la pagina. Non si tratta però solo di un elenco di frasi fatte. Prima di essere veicolo di comunicazione, la lingua è un modo di vedere il mondo. E i frasari aiutano proprio a entrare in questa visione e a decifrarla. Per capire, per esempio, come e quando dare del lei, o perché nei mercatini di alcuni paesi sia inutile contrattare. Il volume contiene un dizionario di 2000 parole. Annotation Supplied by Informazioni Editoriali

How to Deliver Engaging Sessions-David Haskins 2012 Working with others and being assisted by a knowledgeable coach can be hugely rewarding. The role of the coach can be absolutely crucial, but also very diverse. Some of the tools from the coach's existing toolbox will still be absolutely appropriate. All participants will want to improve physically and technically, and coaches will have a repertoire of skills to help them, but something more will be required, and this resource begins to define the difference. The book uses the 'C' system based on the 5Cs framework for the personal and social development of young people developed in the US by Richard Lerner and colleagues.

Connection - Helping adults connect with each other and the benefits of their chosen activity.

Confidence - Ensuring adults understand how to define success and how they can get better.

Competence - Coaching for the level of competence identified by the performer and coach. Creativity - Encouraging adults to find their own ways to practise, play and perform.

Character - Respecting the codes of sport.

Having standards for correct behaviour, a sense of right and wrong and integrity. Caring and Compassion - A sense of sympathy and empathy for others. Each section has thought-provoking questions for you to consider using self-reflection and diagnosis of your own methods. There are spaces where you are encouraged to set short-, medium- and long-term goals for achieving the good practice outlined in the book.

Adapting Infrastructure to Climate Change-
Todd Schenk 2017-08-15 Many of the challenges that decision-makers grapple with in relation to climate change are governance related. Planning and decision-making is evolving in ambiguous institutional environments, in which many key issues remain unresolved, including relationships between different actors; funding arrangements; and the sources and procedures for vetting data. These issues are particularly acute at this juncture, as climate adaptation moves from broad planning processes to the management of infrastructure systems. Concrete decisions must be made. Adapting Infrastructure to Climate Change draws on case studies of three coastal cities situated within very different governance regimes: neo-corporatist Rotterdam, neo-pluralist Boston and semi-authoritarian Singapore. The book examines how infrastructure managers and other stakeholders grappling with complex and uncertain climate risks are likely to make project-level decisions in practice, and how more effective decision-making can be supported. The differences across governance regimes are currently unaccounted for in adaptation planning, but are crucial as best practices are devised. These lessons are also applicable to infrastructure planning and decision-making in other contexts. This book will be of great interest to scholars of climate change and environmental policy and governance, particularly in the context of infrastructure management.

Notwithstanding-Louis de Bernieres
2016-10-18 As the world around it marches forward, the bucolic English village of Notwithstanding remains unchanged. It is, as it always has been, a place of pubs and cricket pitches, where local eccentrics—a retired colonel who has eschewed clothes, a spiritualist living with the ghost of her husband, and a dog named Archibald Scott-Moncrieff—almost fit in. In this delightfully evocative collection of stories, in which a young couple falls in and out of love by letter alone, an eleven-year-old boy battles a monstrous fish, and a man of the cloth has a premonition of death, Louis de Bernières conjures up a rural idyll long since forgotten. Funny, bittersweet, and deeply felt, Notwithstanding is the bestselling author of Corelli's Mandolin at his most enchanting.

The Politics of Electoral Systems-Michael Gallagher 2008-01-10 Electoral systems matter. They are a crucial link in the chain connecting the preferences of citizens to the policy choices made by governments. They are chosen by political actors and, once in existence, have political consequences for those actors. They are an important object of study for anyone interested in the political process, and in this book we subject them to systematic analysis. In addition to some comparative chapters, the book contains full accounts of the operation of electoral systems in 22 countries: France, the UK, Germany, Italy, Israel, Spain, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, The Netherlands, Ireland, Hungary, Russia, Australia, Canada, India, the USA, Japan, New Zealand, Chile, and South Africa. The book provides detailed analyses of the operation of a diverse set of electoral systems in their national context. Each chapter explains how the electoral system really works in the given country, examining the strategic incentives the system provides to voters, candidates, and parties. All country chapters have a common format and structure. Successive sections analyse: the institutional context; how each electoral system was chosen historically; how the current electoral system operates (the rules, mechanics, and ballot structure); and the political consequences of the current system (the impact on the party system, the internal life of parties, and the impact on parliament and government formation). Each country chapter then contains a final section which focuses on the politicization of electoral institutions. In recent years many countries have changed their electoral systems, either entirely or in part so there is a strong focus on the processes of electoral reform, both historically and prospectively. The book concentrates on the real world 'politics', as well as the 'political science' of electoral systems. The book will be of interest to those concerned with the practical political business of electoral reform. The book contains a wealth of evidence about the performance of various kinds of proportional representation and of non-PR systems. This will be invaluable for anyone interested in the question: 'What would be the best electoral system for my country?'

To an Island in Africa-Vivian Usborne Child 2005-02 "In 1951, Vivian Mary Usborne, a 31-year-old English doctor posted to remote areas of Tanzania, worked as a member of a team conducting medical surveys under the auspices of the British Colonial Service. Every day, Doctor Usborne walked miles through dramatic landscapes in the Northern Province gathering data on common diseases from rural inhabitants on Ukara Island in Lake Victoria and, later, in the savannas of Sukumuland. In 1953, she treated patients in mission hospitals in the far reaches of the Southern Province. She journeyed thousands of miles throughout East Africa, often alone, by car, train, boat, and small plane, and she painted the people and places she observed with only the materials at hand. Here in her own words and pictures is her African experience"--Back cover.
